About TASP

As a leading 501c3 nonprofit, TASP is committed to successfully supporting families when parents have learning difficulties. We know that lasting individual and social change come about when we work together to achieve a common goal. Every day we work side-by-side with researchers, practitioners, and self-advocates to ensure that all parents have a chance to parent.

Registration Opens October 1

About the Conference

This year's theme, Building Bridges, focuses on breaking down silos and strengthening the community fabric that surrounds and supports parents with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD).

The 2026 TASP Conference aims to strengthen community and systems-based partnerships that promote advocacy, inclusion, and equitable parenting support for individuals with IDD, while centering the lived experiences of parents and self-advocates.

The Conference offers social workers, legal professionals, policy makers, researchers, direct service providers, parents, and others, an opportunity to learn about new and innovative practice, policy and research taking place at local, state, national and international levels.

Why Sponsor and Exhibit

- Connect with professionals, self-advocates, and families focused on supporting parents with IDD.
- Share programs, services, and tools that make a difference.
- Build partnerships across healthcare, social work, education, and community orgs.
